Richard Crawford is Hans T. David Distinguished University Professor at the University of Michigan and perhaps the most highly respected scholar teaching American music today. A past president of the American Musicological Society, Crawford has published ten books on American music and won numerous honors, fellowships, and awards, including election to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Great condition.

very useful set for teaching

As expected for a music course

I received this and 2 of the discs do not work, although the package was not damaged. I am 1 day past the return time (which is my fault), but I am bummed that I only have 2 out of 4 working discs for my class.
