Mari Lyn Henry is a partner at Henry Downey Talent Management LLC and is nationally known for her workshops on audition techniques, cold reading skills, script analysis, and marketing strategies. Lynne Rogers' extensive career on stage, in film, and on television includes a leading role on Guiding Light. She has been the voice for many nationally advertised products, and her other books include The Love of Their Lives, a behind-the-scenes look at the soap opera industry.

This is the first time I've felt compelled to review a product on ... unfortunately to warn prospective buyers. I didn't find this book useful at all, and assuming you are a reasonably intelligent adult, you probably won't either. Half the book is wasted on really basic advice seemingly for kids leaving the house for the first time, anyone moving to "the big city" or generally looking for first jobs in the professional world - actors or no. That, and, much of the advice actually about the business of acting, feels kind of out of touch for 2014 (this is a 2008 edition so I probably should have known better). I'm bummed I'll have to pay return postage, but it's a good reminder to get to the library and borrow more books before buying. I would instead recommend Self-Management for Actors (the best out there, much more insightful, current and insider-y) or Acting is Everything - An Actor's Guidebook. Now THESE are books you'll be happy to buy and keep on your bookshelf to return to again and again.

For the amateur or neophyte in your life, get this book. Before the Audition book, before the Get an Agent book, GET THIS BOOK. This breaks it down, the simple stuff to have in place first. Like a headshot, what should it look like, a resume, what it should look like, what if you don't have enough experience for a resume, things like this that seem to proliferate the message boards from newbies confused by the mixed messages of others on how to start or break in to the business. Invaluable and should be a birthday or christmas gift for those who you know have theatrical or film or tv aspirations.
