Cold Waves, Cold Blood

Synopsis

A new school, new friends, and a new surf season. Things are looking up for Marguerite McGregor. Between a blossoming friendship with fellow surfer Rafael and an upcoming surfing competition, Marguerite's life finally seems to be heading in the right direction. But when Rafael witnesses a brutal murder and the killers turn their sights on him, can Marguerite find a way to help her friend without getting caught in the line of fire herself?

Patrick Doherty is an author, teacher, martial arts instructor, and youth programs director. He was born in Naperville, Illinois, and grew up with his sister in neighboring Aurora. He teaches Okinawan karate & self-defense to children and teens full time, and serves as director for the non-profit youth organization. Patrick has also taught English and History at the middle school level. He enjoys reading as much as writing, and is also an avid surfer, guitarist, and life-long fan of the Chicago White Sox. Patrick lives in Florida.

For anyone looking for a great literary ride...this is it. The story steers clear of the cliché and the imagery is great, forgot it wasn't me in the water a few times. He certainly gives the big gun authors a run for their money and I am looking forward to the next installment.

Wow...Doherty comes through again. This effort matched Waves of Grace, which is no easy task.

His descriptive writing is superb. I got roped in from the start and damn near read the whole thing without putting it down. A real page-turner. Doherty is a champion of the genre.

I love a good mystery and this is excellent! I think that if you live in Chicago or are familiar with the city, you will appreciate the descriptions of certain locations that are in this story. It will make this story even more real to you.

Very solid coming-of-age novel. Intense, suspenseful, and well-researched.

Excellent!
